QCC2009 - What are the real implications for Queensland's coastal environments? How do those involved in coastal planning and management proactively address these changing elements and mitigate potential impacts? How do we know our management practices are the most effective solution to identified problems and who do we turn to for guidance and information? All of these issues and more will be discussed at the Queensland Coastal Conference 2009.

QCC 2009 will assist coastal managers, planners and decision makers to enhance and maintain momentum for coastal sustainability in Queensland. Discussions, workshops and presentations will draw on the learning's of the past and build on the wealth of existing knowledge to increase our efforts in protecting Queensland's iconic coastline. Plenary and concurrent sessions will focus on the following themes:

- Planning, Policy and Politics
- Relationships - People and Communities
- Coast and Marine Assets
- In Action not Inaction

QCCG Forum - The QCCG (Qld Coastal Councils Group) Forum will be held on 12 May 2009 and is open to any Local Government officer or Councillor who is involved in the management of the coastal zone, as well as coastal managers who interact with Local Government. The event is particularly useful, as the issues discussed and workshopped at the Forum allow attendees to hear about new or emerging ways to manage coastlines/waterways, how issues or problems have been solved, and provides a valuable networking opportunity. You can register for the QCCG Forum via the conference website.
